Strasbourg

Cosmopolitan, international with a rich centuries-old history, Strasbourg, the European capital is located close to the German border and is a gateway to Germany (direct tram line in 20 minutes), Switzerland, Belgium, Luxembourg and the Netherlands.

The city has a historic centre listed to UNESCO and is developing new districts towards the Rhine River with bold architecture.

A driving force for innovation: Strasbourg's 4 competitiveness clusters nurture and structure innovative projects in the region. They assist businesses in bringing their new products, services and procedures from the research project stage to the marketplace, thus helping the businesses develop and grow.

In Alsace, gastronomy is an integral part of culture, nourished by traditions that are enthusiastically renewed by great and talented chefs and a plethora of restaurateurs.
